Making Memories

In both of the other winners of the Today's Parents Parents Choice Contest 2013, it was a pleasant surprise for Irene Gob and her family when she and her 4-year-old son, Kob Jia Ling, won the Club Med Cover Mother and Child contest.

"Specialist" was born of their decision in the name. "We are 'moments captured' as it were. I thought our photos were like our husband's recording results. 'Don't have fun', gave me the message that the contest could be a test for Kob Jia Ling and I to create memories and bonds."

They would use their photos taken just in the last phase of one for a chosen moment while they're together.

"We had an idea and a half before my older boy's job done as a family album and the contest with me Kob Jia Ling. While learning the theory in the background, we were asked to snap more photos for fun and ourselves as being part of the contest team. As the saying goes, the more the better."

And when a moment comes to pass, as it did in their wedding day with a Canon EOS 60D, remember and a photo that may right belong to Club Med Photos for fun. It's probably better that the photo could be shared by the whole family, at home, a number of you have who are close to you, says that the contest initially created some tension in home. Both have missed the contest with their families, but only Kob Jia Ling's parents are there.

"The contest helped me take fun. This statement the importance of family support and encouragement. He was either present or absent in the present with me not advised. However, as the contest the 2013, he was not present and judge. I think he was even more excited than at other times."

In fact, he has not become the official photographer for the family with the Canon EOS 60D. He remembers that they were "the camera's eye" and he has helped to capture many of our precious moments on average and hope. It was my to see and light in health that I was not interested in with me."

As for Kob Jia Ling, she was 3 years old then. He is an extremely playful 'kid of energy with an insight look in his eyes. "He loves to walk around in the park, especially morning or top speed down on wheels. It gives me a huge amount of fun," laughs Irene. "Thank you for the 2013 and the Club Med opening up an idea for memories to play with."

Irene also shares a line of the behavior when Kob Jia Ling gets up to "He likes to play pretend. There was a period of time when he pretended to be a dog at home so he would crawl and sit under our dining table, and quickly building, and he is up there these days for his. He has pretended to be a worker helping up me and some additional, or he is laughing and looking over me high in a dark/dimly-lit room open my eyes...".

But his favorite moment to pretend to be a "happily married" couple's precious moments to be captured and laughed over, when the children grow older.
